What?
Who?

Tom Pazyra (left) was completely surprised Friday evening as he escorted a blindfolded Jim Buckley into the Good Guy dinner. Pazyra had been told Buckley was the Good Guy for 1993 and had spent an hour apprehending him with fellow officer Mike Burns (right). Other photos appear on page 8.

Tom Pazyra: Wilmington's choice for 1993 Good Guy

by Arlene Surprenant

A full house of friends and relatives turned out last Friday to pay tribute to an emotional Tom Pazyra, Wilmington's Good Guy for 1993.

Pazyra edged out 12 other nominees for the coveted title, which honors that resident who goes out of his way to help make Wilmington a better place in which to live.

There were few dry eyes in the Knights of Columbus Hall as an unsuspecting Pazyra entered through the rear door and heard emcee Harry Cunningham introduce him as the 27th Good Guy. Pazyra, dressed in the uniform of a Keystone Cop, was bringing in a blindfolded Jim Buckley, whom he had been told was this year's winner. It took several minutes for reality to sink in as Pazyra hugged Buckley, flashbulbs popped, and the crowd gave the new Good Guy a standing ovation.

Following a stuffed chicken dinner catered by Rocco's Restaurant, the good-humored "roast" got underway. Friends from the Lions Club, adult softball league, and Fourth of July Committee as well as local and state politicians came forward bearing gifts and a few well-chosen words.

One of the most unique gifts was a "megasize" red megaphone personalized with Pazyra's name and new title from the Fourth of July Committee. In a poll of his committee, said Chairman Jim Stewart, Pazyra came across as "an annoying guy who comes around (during the Fourth celebration) with this little megaphone." The larger version will hopefully improve his reputation, said Stewart, who has served on the volunteer committee with Pazyra for seven years.

Softball coach Mike Winn gifted Pazyra with an impressive trophy sporting a horses rear end. Winn explained that in the softball league, the biggest trophies go to those making the biggest blunders.

Cunningham told the story of how Pazyra put together the "D" team of the softball league, whose claim to fame was losing 23 games in a row. Pazyra then "seduced" the players into joining the Wilmington Lions Club, a move that Cunningham said saved that organization.

Although no one doubted it was Pazyra's evening, it was also the Lions night to roar, as they took turns honoring one of their own.

And they did it in style with a slide show tracing Pazyra's family history as far back as Papa Pazyra. As pictures of Pazyra in several outrageous costumes flashed on the screen, announcer Mike Burns noted similarities of features in long lost relatives like Igor Pazyra from Transylvania, Meadowlark Pazyra from Darkest Africa, and Chip (read that Chippendale) Pazyra from New York City.

Although many of the speakers went out of their way to kid Pazyra, himself a kidder most famous for his pie-in-the-face routine with former school superintendent Bill Fay, several had some serious comments as well.

The most memorable came from fellow Lion Rocco DePasquale, who noted, "Tom has been an inspiration for the Lions Club that's unequalled." Some pointed to Pazyra's humility and his unselfishness in donating time in the past to coach Wilmington youth in hockey and baseball.

Cunningham did his part to keep the evening moving along, as he shot off one-liners on everything from Rep. Jim Miceli's new trim figure ("We have [here] half our state rep") to selectmen candidate Tony Capuano's alleged comment that he follows Pazyra as he jogs around town ("Tony runs behind everybody").

Cunningham was at his best, though, with his Rocco joke collection as he gently teased DePasquale, the town's first Good Guy, about his one-legged status. He noted the Good Guy Committee wanted to do something to honor DePasquale.

"We've got to do something for the man. How about running a dance for him?" said Cunningham.

One of his biggest laughs came later in the evening. As DePasquale was making his slow way back to his table, Cunningham called out, "all Rocco's help walks that fast."

Cunningham also recognized Pazyra's Polish heritage by bestowing a Polish t-shirt on him from the citizens of that country with a message to "come home soon."

Along with the humorous gifts, Pazyra received citations from local legislators; a Paul Revere bowl from the board of selectmen; a Wilmington Softball League jacket from Jack Cushing, who protested against honoring "a guy who runs around town in his underwear;" and a plaque from those who shared last year's Good Guy award, Bob DiPalma and Jim Hachey. Both men had the difficult task of organizing this year's dinner and program.

The Committee took time out to bestow a gift on Senator Bob Buell, a regular at the annual Good Guy dinners. In recognition of his penchant for leaving small combs with each winner, the committee gave the senator an oversized comb of his own.

At the end of the night, Pazyra seemed almost speechless as he told those in attendance, "I'm thrilled. I'm honored. I'm tingling inside. And I love you all."

Several members of Pazyra's immediate family were on hand for the four hour tribute. Among them were Pazyra's wife Carole; his children Kelli and Tom; his brother Charles; his three sisters Helen Levy, Dot Casey, and Laura Cazmay; and his sister-in-law Jean Nazzaro.

Wilderness program builds self-esteem

by Arlene Surprenant

Climbing mountains, hiking along old logging roads and railroad beds, fishing, camping out, completing assigned chores, and sitting around a campfire late at night were all on the itinerary this past weekend for six Wilmington High School students.

The students were chosen by the high school physical education staff to join a wilderness program patterned after Outward Bound.

The trip took the students and four local police officers into the Pemigewasset wilderness area of the White Mountains in New Hampshire near Crawford Notch.

According to Detective Robert Spencer, the three day program is designed to build self-esteem, instill leadership qualities, and provide a successful experience in an environmental setting.

"The idea is to let them (the students) find out what their capabilities are," Spencer told the Wilmington School Committee last Wednesday.

The program is sponsored and paid for by the Wilmington Police Association, which lays out between $800 and $1,000 for camping equipment, food, and transportation to the site. This is the ninth year the school system is participating in the program.

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors interested in participating in the rigorous trip had to fill out an application and gain permission from the school staff. Those who benefit most from the program, which offers two credits toward graduation, are students who have had some problems in school and may be in danger of not graduating, said Spencer. He noted while the experience is "not a walk in-the park," the adults and teenagers are able to develop "a little bit of a bond" during the intensive activities. The police officers who participated in this year's trip were Larry Redding, Michael Begonis, Harold Hubby, and Chip Bruce.

Members of the school committee praised the program. Dr. James Demos noted, "sometimes a youngster needs this kind of an environment to change how he or she sees himself." Bob Young asked for a follow-up on this year's program.

The committee voted six to one to approve the trip, which was scheduled to begin on Sunday.

Possible tragedy The Wilmington Police and Fire Departments got together with the high school in a mock rescue operation and prom 'accident' on the WHS football field Tuesday afternoon. The demonstration was to remind the students of the hazards of drinking and driving on prom night.

It's YOUR Money

PROFIT OR LOSS? CHECK YOUR RECORDS

So you sold your mutual fund shares, and the proceeds exceeded what you invested in the first place. Did you make a profit? Only your records will tell you for sure.

Say, for instance, that your dividends and capital-gains distributions are reinvested, year after year; in effect, you are buying additional shares at the market price. Those dividends and gains must be added to the original cost basis to determine what you really paid. It would be helpful to keep a permanent running tally of your basis on a sheet of paper for each fund you own. If you sell all your shares, the arithmetic is relatively easy: your basis is the initial investment plus dividends and gains. Where it gets tricky is if you sell just a few shares. You can identify in writing which shares you want to sell at the time you order the sale; most often you'll choose high basis shares to minimize tax. If not specified, it's assumed that the first shares bought are the first sold. Most often, sellers will use average basis, totaling the investment and dividing by the number of shares. It is expected that funds will soon be required to keep these records for you to save you the trouble.

What are the tax consequences of your financial transactions? Before you plan a major move, talk to us first at:

DeRoeve negotiates three year contract

by Arlene Surprenant
Peter DeRoeve, business manager of the Wilmington School System, has negotiated a three year contract with the local school committee effective July 1.

According to the contract, DeRoeve will remain at his present $57,844 salary next year then receive a 3.7 percent increase in the second year. DeRoeve's salary will remain open in the third year of the agreement.

School committee Chairman Brad Jackson said last week it was unprecedented for DeRoeve to agree to no increase in salary for the third year in a row. He noted the business manager understands the system's financial situation. Jackson also explained the decision to leave the salary open in the last year of the contract is a "significant" change in the way contracts have been handled in the past.

"I believe this is a cutting edge implementation of a new type of contract," said Jackson.

Besides being a former math teacher and the business manager for the system, DeRoeve has also stepped in twice as acting superintendent, once last summer and again before new superintendent Dr. Geraldine O'Donnell came on board. The committee has praised DeRoeve in the past for his willingness to take on additional work with no increase in pay and for keeping the system running smoothly during a difficult time.

The new contract also includes "standard" benefits such as sick leave and health insurance, according to committeeman Dr. Shirley Callan.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

On May 10, 1993, the Board of Selectmen held an "Information Hearing" on the proposed Buckingham Estates being suggested by Thomas Realty Trust. Thomas Realty Trust is attempting to obtain a comprehensive permit to build on lots less than 60,000 square feet (current zoning) and must obtain the approval of the town via the Board of Selectmen. The comprehensive permit will allow them to build more houses by zoning different size lots if 25 percent of the houses built are "affordable." If Thomas Realty Trust was required to obtain the approval of the current neighborhood, they would be unanimously defeated. Currently there are 18 houses in the Buckingham Estates area and none of the owners of these houses wants to see another 23 houses built. The discontent with this proposal is much more widespread than the immediate neighborhood. Home owners from Aldrich Road and other streets have also expressed their disapproval.

I must admit Thomas Realty Trust has done a fine job of dancing around several of the major issues and concerns of the current residents of the neighborhood. While they profess to be concerned with the interests of the neighborhood, their obvious interest is money. The equation is simple, the more houses they can build, the more money they can make. I hope the Board of Selectmen can see through the wonderful picture they have painted for us - a concerned bank with two concerned developers with a great concern for those who can't afford to buy homes at the current market price. You've got to be kidding me.

The first issue that was side stepped was the value of the property currently built in the neighborhood. The neighborhood feels that our property will depreciate as a result of this new plan. In fact, this concern was voiced at a meeting several months ago and some research was to be done on this. Although a written copy of the report was promised, no current resident of the neighborhood has received it to date. Is Thomas Realty Trust willing to make up the difference in sale price at the time we all sell our homes?

The number of houses proposed to be built is also a major concern. While Thomas Realty Trust gave us terrific numbers of houses per thousand square feet and the like, it is obvious to even the casual observer that the numbers are contrived to satisfy their needs. A child in elementary math could look at the maps presented and discern that the proposed houses are going to be closer together and more compact than the current neighborhood. The numbers certainly look good when you factor in the acres of wetlands that can't be built on anyway. Why don't you give me a list of the lot sizes that the houses are going to be built on or just give me the median lot size instead of some skewed average which means absolutely nothing?

Another major concern of the current neighborhood is safety. Buckingham Street will be the only entrance into an exit from the proposed development. One access road to a development of more than 40 houses poses several safety risks. The first of which is increased traffic flow. With the number of small children in the area, any large increase in traffic flow will be dangerous. The amount of increased traffic on Buckingham Street due to the doubling the number of houses will be significant. Thomas Realty Trust has assured me that traffic studies have been done and that the number of cars per square foot of road will increase only slightly. If you have 40 houses each with two cars trying to get to work between 7 and 8 in the morning you're going to see a significant traffic increase. Not to mention the additional traffic caused by construction crews and their vehicles. I'm sure the traffic studies presented averaged the traffic over a 24 hour period so that Thomas Realty Trust could take advantage of the fact that we all have to sleep.

Having a single entrance and exit to such a large development poses another safety concern because the current road is only 25 feet wide. It is difficult for two cars to pass one another with a car parked on the side of the road, never mind trying to get a fire truck down the road while there is a parked car. There was some discussion that a fire truck could pass even if there was a parked car on the side of the road. I would ask you to try it near the mail box memorial on Buckingham Street to see if it is possible. I hope the fire truck doesn't break down and we have to get another one by it because the house which is burning is sure to burn to the ground. Add in the number of construction trucks, backhoes, and front end loaders that get left on the street and we could have a really big problem. I can't even get to my house some days because a dump truck is parked in the street. It would certainly be more difficult getting a fire truck by that dump truck than my small car.

Another major concern is the drainage (or lack of) in this area. Thomas Realty Trust has assured me that the water will flow in one direction when it is currently flowing in another. They have assured me that we will have no drainage problem. All winter I had ice in front of my driveway which theoretically should not have been there. If water was flowing in the right direction, it certainly wouldn't have been there. There is a big difference between theory and reality. Who knows where the water will begin to flow when the land for 23 homes is cleared and foundations are dug!

When asked to change the style of the proposed homes in the neighborhood from a split gambrel cape to anything but a split gambrel cape, Thomas Realty Trust responded by changing the styles of some of the "affordable" houses without making any changes to the style of the 17 other homes. I invite any selectmen to take a ride down split gambrel cape-ville to see what the addition of 23 new split gambrel capes would do to the neighborhood.

A final concern is the integrity of the builders. When I moved in, I was told that the number of houses going in beyond Cambridge Street was six. There was no need to worry because the Board of Appeals was no longer allowing variances in the area. Twenty-three houses is a far cry from the six originally promised! I also know that the quality of my house is not the best. A lot of corners and short cuts were taken. I wonder what secret path will be taken in the affordable houses to help the builder still break even or make money on the house. In addition, there is always a hassle getting something fixed in my home. I have lived there over a year now and am still trying to get things fixed. I know I am not the only resident with this complaint and I also know that the other builder involved in this proposal has provided the same level of satisfaction. I don't feel either builder would be any quicker to react to fixing a house has made little or no profit on.

In conclusion, I would mention that the number of affordable houses proposed does little to help the town reach its goal of 10 percent (so that it can obtain state money) at the expense of the current neighborhood. I am also insulted that the original reason for developing the "affordable" houses is to get more young people in the neighborhood, where the current neighborhood has an average age of about 30. It appears they are willing to sacrifice the existing young neighborhood to get six young families into the new neighborhood. There isn't a current resident who hasn't talked about moving out of the neighborhood if the permit is granted. It doesn't make a whole lot of sense to me.

I am asking that the Board of Selectmen take these concerns and all the other concerns voiced by the neighborhood into account when making a final decision. I know that your campaign promises were to listen to the people. Here's your chance.

Sincerely,
Michael Dunn

Dear Larz:

I would like to speak out in support of our teachers. Lately, due to stalled contract negotiations, the teachers have seemed to some to appear less than committed to our children.

I can speak only from my own experience as a parent of a first grader at the Heath Brook Elementary School.

The teachers in our school community work hard with our children to provide them with the best they have to offer. Their hard work has not diminished in any way apparent to me over the course of the school year.

We parents have worked hard to keep open the lines of communication with our teachers. We are partners in our children's education and we parents and teachers work hard to keep our children first.

We want the teachers to be treated fairly. We want them to be justly compensated for their hard work. We also trust that our school committee and school officials want the same thing.

It must be difficult for teachers to keep up their morale. It must be hard for the school committee as well. I assume both parties are bargaining in good faith with the same goal in mind. That goal; a fair settlement for the teachers, one that reflects their worth, yet doesn't bust the town budget. A settlement with which teachers, school officials, and townspeople can live.

I have faith in our teachers. They are professionals who keep their contract disputes out of the classroom and continue to put our children first.

Please, let's get this contract issue settled.

Sincerely,
Linda Mayer

I'm changing from our other local paper because I've found more Tewksbury news in your Town Crier. I hope this will continue.

I personally totally agree. Enough is enough on the hazing letters!

Suburban snobbery

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Mention the idea of suburban snobbery to local developer Jay Tighe, and he'll nod his head with an affirmation of disappointment. Speaking like a platoon leader who's been fighting World-War-I-like trench warfare with "narrow minded Townies" as he calls them, Tighe said he could "write a book" on a pervasive local attitude that wants to preserve the status quo and keep "anybody who's different" from joining the exclusive club, or small community, that we call Wilmington.

Besides his football days at Wilmington High School and his brief stint as a local school committee member, Tighe is best known for his first-of-its-kind Chapter 774 housing development known as Shawsheen Commons. To some, Shawsheen Commons is the American Dream brought back down to an economically reachable level. To others, it's a local pariah which abutters on Reed Street and Harold Street have fought so fervently you'd think it was the Three Mile Island extension.

Tighe opened a Pandora's Box in this parochial bedroom community when he took advantage of a controversial state law protecting builders from the local bureaucracy when they earmark at least 30 percent of their developments as affordable. In May of 1987 Tighe announced his local version of a Chapter 774 development. His plan called for 400 units at the old Chisholm milk farm which borders Hopkins and Reed Streets.

Before the plan became reality it would be chopped nearly in half and Tighe would fight a series of often bitter skirmishes with a zealous opposition of local homeowners. These homeowners were lucky enough to buy into their piece of the American pie when a man's castle could be had for a mere 16 or so thousand.

"They had been used to this land the way it was and just weren't willing to see anything else go in there," said Tighe, explaining the mentality of his detractors. But did it ever, and does it still today, go beyond that?

"It's also NIMBY," said Tighe, evoking the familiar "not in my backyard" syndrome which has stymied social policy for years. In other words, it's old fashioned snobbery. None of the intolerant gang on Reed Street will admit it, but there's been more than mumbling about "what type of crowd will this affordable housing attract here?"

"No question about it," Tighe said about this snobbery issue. "The older people in control, the Townies, have fought any type of condominium, any type of apartments or anything else that lets the new generation afford to live here or new people come to this town."

In fact, Wilmington is sadly distinct in the Merrimack Valley for its absence of any significant apartment space. With the median price of a single family home still beyond the reach of most couples, Wilmington's own progeny is often compelled into exile to bordering Billerica or Tewksbury, where rental opportunities abound.

To what ends Tighe's opposition would go never ceased to amaze Tighe and the young people who observed with bitter frustration. When the community was awarded a $500,000 Community Development Grant to make the necessary infrastructure improvement in the area surrounding Shawsheen Commons, abutters went so far as to pressure selectmen to turn the half million grant down. Fortunately, sanity prevailed, but Tighe's unyielding antagonists had already taken their toll. "It's been tough, because they had us on the verge of bankruptcy. My two partners and I had a million dollars out of pocket," said Tighe.

Today, Tighe's less-than-loyal opposition may be finally resigning itself to the inevitability of what for years has been anathema to them - what they call low-income housing and what Tighe calls affordable opportunities.

In hindsight, Shawsheen Commons may be a case study in the provincial, almost insular attitude of aging, suburban America. How soon this anti-development faction of today has forgotten their own struggles. Instead of helping the new generation, the older one, or at least a rabid, unsympathetic part of it, has dug in its stale heels prepared to fight any alternative style housing to the bitter end.

Today, 21 of Shawsheen Common's 66 affordable units are occupied. Sixteen of the 21 units house young people with Wilmington roots and "there's no way they'd be able to have a house otherwise," said Tighe.

Meanwhile, the affordable housing waiting list, too long for Shawsheen Commons, is still threatened by a frightening attitude. "If people don't wake up and accept new alternatives to housing, their own children may be the next ones who have to leave the town they want to call home, but can't," said Tighe.

WILMINGTON

The May 25, 1983 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

A site for Dynamics Research Corp (DRC) was proposed near the Andover town line, on land now owned by the Wilmington Water Department.

Selectman DePasquale said the sale of 34 acres of town owned land could help finance a new water treatment plant and other projects. At $50 an acre, the land could bring the town $1.7 million.

Contents of the home of the late Mildred Buck on Woburn Street were auctioned off and a goodly crowd was present.

Wilmington public schools reading tutors were pictured with Principal Harold Garrett. They included: Kelly Herson, Julie Rowen, Julie Lowry, Liz Stewart, Linda Dicey, Erin Ahern, Monica Stemmler, and Mia Santoro.

Susan Curtis of Beacon Street received the Master of Divinity Degree cum laude from Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Centre.

Anna Maria DeGaravilla of Woburn Street was named to the dean's list for the second semester at Bates College.

Has your stockbroker called yet? If not, he probably will soon, offering you stock in bottled water companies. In case you didn't notice, the bottled water companies; advertising agency (also known as the EPA) launched a media blitz recently. The EPA announced that 110 water departments in the state, including Wilmington, exceeded the maximum allowable level of lead in tap water. Cause for concern? In some cases, yes; in most cases - no.

Before you rush out to buy bottled water at the supermarket, it is important to understand what the test results mean and how they were conducted.

Those communities that made the EPA list had at least 10 percent of their samples with lead levels greater than 15 parts per billion. In Wilmington's case, 60 samples were taken, with the highest reading at 19 parts per billion. The town with the highest level was a 130 parts per billion. Interestingly, most of the communities that get their water from the MWRA are on the list.

The EPA test produced looks for the worst case situation by design. It targets homes with lead pipes or those constructed between 1983 and 1986 when lead solder was used in copper plumbing. Since Wilmington doesn't have any lead service pipes, lead solder represents the prime threat.

If your home was constructed prior to 1983 or after 1986, the odds are that the lead in your tap water is well below EPA limits.

The sample testing procedure takes the first water out of the tap in the morning. This allowed the water to be in contact with the plumbing for six to eight hours.

It is important to remember that the source of the lead is the house plumbing, not the water as it comes from the well. However, the ground water in New England is acidic (corrosive). Unless the acidity is reduced with chemicals, the water tends to leach lead from soldered joints in the plumbing.

Wilmington's two water treatment plants currently use lime to make the water less acidic. Water is considered acidic when the pH is less than seven. In Wilmington, the untreated water has a pH of 6.1 and the treated water has a pH of 8.5. To bring the treated water into compliance will require only a minor modification in chemical dosage to increase the pH slightly.

If you are concerned about the potential for lead in your tap water, there are some simple steps you can take. Let the water run a few minutes in the morning before using for coffee or drinking. Don't use water from the hot water tap for cooking.

The recent headlines will probably bring out the charlatans selling home treatment devices. Don't let them sell you a carbon filter for removing lead because it doesn't work. The only treatment device that is effective with lead is reverse osmosis and it is very expensive.

EPA estimates that it will cost local water departments nationwide over seven billion dollars to treat their water supplies. As you might expect, the federal government is not providing funds to help defray these costs. The MWRA estimates it will cost 10 million dollars to construct the necessary chemical treatment facilities with annual costs estimated at four million dollars. This will not be welcome news to those communities in Greater Boston that get MWRA water (Wilmington does not).

Public education by the water department about the effects of lead and how to minimize the risk will begin soon. In the meantime, don't over react to the headlines.

Junior Rotarians attend final luncheon

Ten high school seniors, Junior Rotarians, enjoyed their luncheon on May 10. It happens every year, as the school year draws to a close. All had been guests of Wilmington Rotary, in turn during the year. Now they were having a luncheon together.

But things were different this year. Two had to leave early because of a Spanish test.

"President" Josh Gardner and others were at the head table, and the Rotary officers were not. Steve Greco collected the luncheon fees from the members of the club. Jeff Niestepski was the pianist.

Lori DeAmato and Melissa Gill had the duty of selling the Rotary "lottery" tickets. The proceeds provides the money, each week which Rotary gives to aid in the payment of lunch for the senior citizens. Leah Mazone and Derek Fullerton were the fine masters, inflicting their will upon the individual Rotarians.

Dollars against Diabetes

State Sen. John D. O'Brien is pleased to join with the Sheet Metal Workers Union local #17, the Boston Building Trades in cooperation with several other area unions, to announce the seventh annual Dollars Against Diabetes (DAD) Day Drive.

The annual drive will take place on Fathers' Day Weekend, June 18, 19 and 20. The donation drive is part of a national effort sponsored by the Building Trades Department in Washington, D.C. to collect money for diabetes research. Over $71,000 dollars was collected in Mass. last year during the weekend long event.

Sen. O'Brien would like to alert his constituents that donations are being solicited at major intersections throughout Mass.

EARLY CHILDHOOD CENTER
 1503 Andover Street, Tewksbury, MA 01876
 (508) 851-3220

Learning is something children do... while they're having fun! That's the philosophy of the Lil' Red Schoolhouse and, at this school, the children have lots of fun!
 At the Lil' Red Schoolhouse, each child receives close, personal attention. Teachers and staff believe that it is important to be aware of the pressures, changes, and challenges in each child's life... in and away from school. At school, the physical, social, emotional, intellectual and aesthetic development of every child is encouraged.
 This early childhood center enrolls toddlers, nursery, full day, extended day, and school age children in various programs covering ages 15 months to 14 years.
 In the summer, the Summer Explorer's Camp is available for children ages 6 to 14 years. This year's theme is

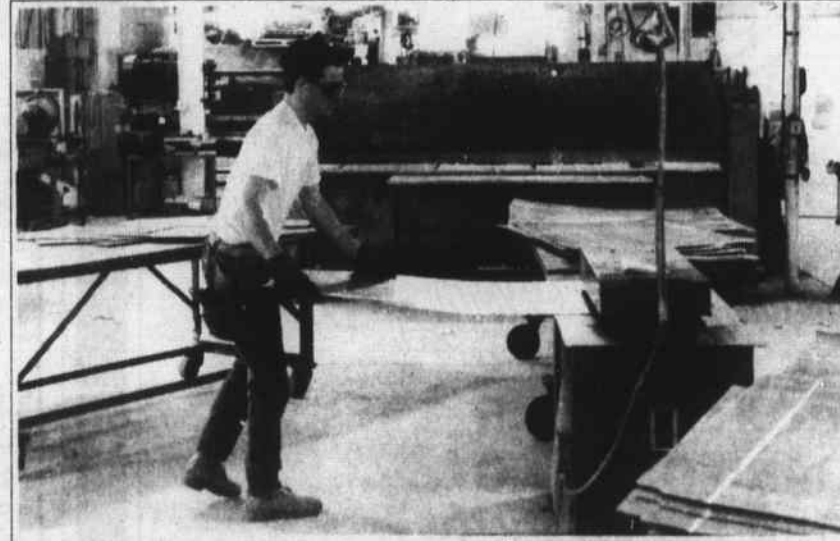

At the Lil' Red Schoolhouse... the children are having fun!

"Saving the Earth's Environment." The children will learn about the Rainforests, Deserts, and Atmosphere/Space. Students aged 12-14 can participate in a "Counselor in Training" program which enables them to help plan or run activities with the younger children.
 The Lil' Red Schoolhouse is located at 1503 Andover Street, Tewksbury. For more information, call Executive Director Alice Juchnevics-Kontos at (508) 851-3220.

 Why in the world would a homeowner need a fabrication house? How about a copper hood for over a stove or kitchen island? Maybe a stainless steel backsplash for the kitchen? A fireplace enclosure... decorated louvers... window sills... specially fabricated gutters... auto floorboards... a brass door kickplate... copper window tops? Just use your imagination!

Prehistoric creatures at Patten Public Library

In the latest in a series of art displays at Tewksbury's Patten Public Library, a collection of dinosaurs is now on display. The exhibition was made possible through the cooperation of the North School. The dinosaurs have been created by students in Mr. Allen's second grade class, as part of their unit on prehistoric creatures.

Many of the displays are three dimensional, showing such dinosaurs as brontosaurus, tyrannosaurus rex, and stegosaurus. Drop by and see life on earth at 65 to 245 million years ago. This exhibition can be viewed at the public library during normal hours Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Shawsheen Tech science fair

Projects that addressed such diverse topics as bone repair, environmental effects of refrigeration, Alzheimer's Disease, and fitness and health took prizes at the Fifth Annual Science Fair at Shawsheen Tech Thursday, May 13.

Angela DiDonato of Tewksbury won first place and a $100 savings bond in the individual project category for a project on birth defects. A written report, posters and a microscope were used in the presentation of her project.

First place in the group category and $100 savings bonds to each winner went to Mike Mazzone of Billerica and Rod Forsythe of Bedford. Rod, a student in the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration (ARC) program, and Mike, a technical illustration commercial art student, brought their skills together to present "The Environmental Effects of Refrigeration" through posters and a video.

Second place winner, individual exhibit was Christine Blacklock of Billerica with a project on "Pregnancy;" second place group winners were Andy Gedry of Tewksbury and Bob Sans Soucie of Billerica, "Alzheimer's Disease." Each winner received a $75 savings bond.

Taking third place and $50 bonds were Jessica Rodriguez and Suzanne Perrotti of Tewksbury, for a group project showing the connection between "Fitness and Health." Tying for third place in the individual category were James DeStefano of North Billerica, "Bone Repair," and Shauna Napoli of Tewksbury, "Parts of the Brain."

"The efforts in many cases were extraordinary," said Robert

Cunningham, assistant superintendent, noting that great efforts came from students who did not win prizes as well. "The amount of knowledge they obtained was obvious. It certainly was a learning experience." Principal John Judge commented on the "high quality and hard work," and said he especially liked seeing a number cooperative projects with students from more than one vocational specialty working together. Forty-eight students took part in 20 individual and 15 group projects.

Hazardous job? Newspaper work is risky business!

by Bill Conlon

Work can sometimes be hazardous to your health, no matter what your profession. There are risks aplenty in any job, but reporters suffer some truly strange on-the-job hazards.

Cashiers risk slamming their cash drawer closed on a thumb, day-care providers learn never to wear dry-clean-only clothes, but reporters are faced with truly bizarre job risks.

Melted clothes

The bigger the fire, the better the pictures you can take. But, big fires also produce zillions of glowing hot coals, some of them popping out into the air and others carried aloft with updrafted smoke. Firefighters wear leather and canvas clothes that resist melting, but most photographers are usually wearing their best polyester slacks when the alarm went off. (He wanted to look good at the meeting that night, but who knows when the fire bell will ring?)

So, after a spectacular three-alarm barnburner and three rolls of great pictures, our trusty photographer heads for home smelling like a dump fire, and wearing pants full of tiny little burn holes. Look closely and you might notice the bald spot on his (or her) scalp, where the hot ember fell out of the sky while focussing on the crew of Ladder 3.

Temporary tattoos

Reporters carry notebooks, all the time. But notebooks aren't bottomless, and they have a nasty habit of turning up missing at precisely the wrong time. Your intrepid news-hound needs to jot down the tidbits of information that will turn into the next day's news, but where to write them if the notebook is home on the dresser? When the old notebook is missing, is there every an envelope, a menu, or even a paper bag with an old wine bottle to scribble on? Nah! And this stuff is far too important to risk forgetting, so it has to be jotted down. Where?

On the palm of your hand. I call it "the notebook that I never forget."

It washes off. Eventually.

The Hot Foot

No, this doesn't have to do with fires. It has to do with photography. Cameras need flash units, and flash units need batteries. But batteries die at exactly the wrong moment, so our trusty photographer always keeps a spare set of AAs on hand, often in a pants pocket to keep them ready.

Put a handful of batteries into the same pocket as the car keys, change, and assorted other metallic junk and something miraculous happens. The metal forms a circuit for the battery current, and the flow of electricity will quickly warm a quarter up to glowing-red. If our trusty reporter-photographer, calmly sitting in the meeting, suddenly jumps out of his chair and starts slapping his leg and ripping all the junk out of his right front pocket, you'll know what just took place. (Yes, it has. Twice.)

Insomnia

Take pictures at one of the schools at 10 a.m., hit the press conference at the board of health at two o'clock, write it all up then stop home for a supper at six, attend the recycling committee meeting at 7, the board of selectmen at 8, stop by the police station when the selectmen are done, and sure enough, there's a fire truck roaring past as you leave the police station.

All of a sudden, it's 2:30 a.m. and I can't get to sleep! Why is that?

Temporary deafness

There are two noise hazards in the newspaper profession: loud printing presses, and telephones. You need to wear ear protection near a web-fed printing press, but at least the press is polite about making noise.

Make a mistake in the newspaper and somebody will tell you about it. The correction may be pointed out with a passing grumble, or laughed at in private, but the hardest way to learn about a mistake is a roaring, swearing, name-calling phone call. I've taken phone calls that were loud enough to hear easily with the phone at arms' length, just because a face in the picture wasn't quite the same as a name in the caption.

So I got somebody's name wrong. Sorry?

Disposable shirts

Reporters carry pens. Despite all the rumors to the contrary, we can't afford the big name pens, like Cross. No, we carry Bic pens. Cheap ones.

And Bic pens, as you'll remember from high school, sometimes like to "throw up" on your shirt, or in your pants, or (utmost horror) while you chew on it. You discover blue ink all over your hand, and you know, with dread, where it came from. Your pen just exploded.

All my shirts carry the badge of a reporter -- a permanent blue stain in the pocket. At least once a month, I get a new badge of honor. (Sigh)

MAKING THE MOST OF HAWAII

Hawaii is a great place to spend a lot of time, lounging on incomparable beaches, exploring volcanoes, pausing to contemplate historic Pearl Harbor, and much more. However, what if you don't have a lot of time?

Travelers with only a couple of days to spend in Hawaii, perhaps on layover to the Orient or elsewhere, can still enjoy a memorable mini-vacation. The key is to plan ahead. Make a list of things you want to do in order of how strongly you feel about them. Consider choosing activities on a single island, since island hopping can eat into limited time. Also consider arranging for a rental car. Keep in mind that a mini-trip is a great way to sample out how you'd like to spend a longer vacation!

When you only have a few precious days to spend on an adventure, good planning makes travel anywhere easier and more relaxing. That's our business at ALL AROUND TRAVEL, making your trip a dream come true. Our staff is experienced in the complex needs of the traveling public. Let us put that experience to work for you at 203 Jefferson Rd., N. Wilmington (Rt. 62), where we're open Mon-Fri, 9-5 and by appointment. PH: 658-2313. Let us show you how you can't afford NOT to use our travel agency.

Who's that?

by Bill Conlon

Everybody has a name. Why, that is what makes us individuals. Within days of your birth your parents gave you a name, and it's likely the same name you call yourself today, unless you had it changed by the courts or by marriage (or the witness protection program).

But there is somebody you see every week who doesn't have a name, and never did. In the Tewksbury-Wilmington area, regular as clockwork, you meet this dapper fellow. He's looks much older than his 37 years, he's highly visible, but he has no name of his own.

Who is that guy?

"Whatzname" has adorned every front page of the Wilmington Town Crier since Captain Larz Neilson started this newspaper in 1955, and he's appeared on every Tewksbury front page since that edition began in 1974. He's never missed a week of work in all those years.

The distinguished gentleman in the tricorn hat and frocked coat, waving his handbell, has been the logo of the Wilmington News Company since it began. He's on our business cards, our letterhead, the sign on top of the building, and inside the newspaper. Sometimes he trades his tricorn for a stocking cap at Christmas, but he's virtually unchanging otherwise.

Around the office he's known as "the little guy" as in "give me a little guy for the front page." Even we don't have a name for our own bell-ringing logo. Seems a bit awkward, doesn't it?

"The Town Crier" was drawn by a friend of Captain Larz, but the name of the artist has been forgotten. The Captain said the artist sketched the "Town Crier" as a gift to the newly-fledged publisher, 40 years ago.

That's much too long. Our Town Crier needs a name of his own.

Starting this week, the Town Crier (newspaper) is launching a contest to name the town crier (the little guy).

First prize is a three-year free subscription to the Town Crier, either edition. Second prize will be a two-year subscription and third place is worth one year.

Entries will be accepted by mail only until June 11, and the winner of the contest will appear on the Off The Clock page on June 16. Nobody at all is disqualified from entering (although we expect a few sarcastic entries), and schools are invited to join the fun. Our mailing address is P.O. Box 939, Wilmington, 01887.

Please give some thought to a good name for the little guy, a proper name for a distinguished yet humble member of the community.

Who is that guy with the bell?

Linn Anderson chosen to build affordable homes

by Arlene Surprenant
Linn Anderson of L.A. Associates Inc. has been chosen to build up to six affordable and three market rate homes on Avon Street and Denault Drive in Wilmington.

Anderson was chosen from among three developers who submitted proposals at the last meeting of the Wilmington Housing Partnership.

The single family homes will be built on town land under the Local Initiative Program, with the affordables selling for $94,500. To make the project financially feasible, Anderson proposed to develop one market rate home on town land and two on nearby land owned by the Bank of Boston.

Because town meeting only authorized selectmen to dispose of the land for affordable units, Partnership members will check on a legal interpretation with Town Counsel.

At Thursday's meeting, board members discussed the pros and cons of the proposals submitted by Anderson, Cobros Limited, and Primrose Residential Inc. All agreed that none of the housing plans were perfect. Members said they were uncomfortable with costs and other figures outlined by Cobros because they differed greatly from the other two proposals and seemed unrealistic.

They also were dissatisfied with the "unrealistic" time frame proposed by Primrose and the fact that the firm only submitted plans for four homes.

Members praised Anderson for her realistic 18 month time frame and figures, her willingness to be flexible, and the research she had done to meet the board's specifications. Mark Haldane said he didn't want people to get the impression Anderson is now "the affordable housing developer for Wilmington." But, he added "she does her homework."

Planning/Conservation Director Lynn Duncan noted, too, that Anderson was very creative in trying to make the project work.

"If this doesn't fly, it would be difficult to have anything fly," said Haldane.

Anderson was one of the builders of the affordable duplex built in conjunction with the Partnership on Silverhurst Avenue. She is also involved in the Buckingham Estates project off Aldrich Road.

The next step in the process will be to take the recommendation of L.A. Associates to selectmen for their endorsement. Then the town will enter into an agreement to transfer the land to the developer so it can be used as collateral for the project.

Spillane speaking

The two pictures show Main Street as it is and Main Street as Mr. Spillane believes it should be, at Wilmington Square.

How Main Street could change

A look at Main Street, Wilmington, not from a traffic viewpoint, but how to locate business firms, with proper locale and proper zoning was offered to members of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce and their guests Tuesday morning at a breakfast in Rocco's Restaurant. Quite a few persons were present.

David Spillane, the speaker, was from the firm of David Dixon/Goody Clancy of Boston. There is a six month contract, starting in January, to study the sites and the problems of stores and zoning along Main Street.

With a population of 18,000 Wilmington has 9,000 in its work force. Sixty percent are employed in manufacturing, the audience was told.

Most of the person employed in manufacturing come from out of town areas. Eleven percent of the jobs are in the business sector along Route 38. It was Route 38 which was discussed.

There is a potential for retail stores along 38, but the site of Sweetheart Plastics is not one. Further, he described the area south of Wilmington Plaza as being "problematic."

"Many people resist trying to get into an area from which it is hard to get out." The area from Middlesex Avenue, along Main Street to Wilmington Square is suitable for "shared parking" - where one can walk from one business to another.

South of Wilmington Square he described as "Transitory B" for Business. Some places are hard to get in, or get out.

Hopefully the area of Wilmington Square can be improved. There is the existing site of the MBTA stop, and that system owns one site. Wilmington should hope it can free up the area, and that some of the space can be free.

There should be single lots, half an acre, and small buildings. The idea is to make business more accessible, and with good sidewalks.

Spillane displayed two sketches, one of the present Main Street viewed from near Middlesex Avenue, looking south. Cars were parked, and the telephone and electric light wires were conspicuous. The second sketch, of the same area showed no wires. Several places in which there were street crossings, plus, on both sides, a number of growing trees.

Speaking of the area across from Wilmington Plaza, Spillane told his audience that it was not now suitable for business. The zoning, he said, was voted after the car dealership was in. He advocated change.

The town should draft improvements in terms of the roadway. Business, he said, along that corridor can play a very important role, but if the town allows curb cuts like they have not it would be no improvement. The idea is to make business more accessible.

Wilmington senior topics

Upholstering class

Students in Ray Allen's upholstery class are learning how to replace the seat covering of a badly torn or discolored chair. They are getting all their experience by working on over 200 folding chairs at the center. The beautiful colored vinyl material to replace the covering on the chairs was purchased through the generosity of the many seniors who worked so hard making, selling and buying articles and chance books at the Senior Christmas Fair.

Any senior who would like to learn this craft free of charge may join the class held in the craft room every Thursday at 9 a.m. Please, Wilmington residents only.

Health programs

The nurse will be at the center Thursday, May 20 to check blood pressures and give diabetes tests starting at 1:30 p.m. Remember, the warm and leisure days of summer are not too far off. We begin to let up on our intake of cakes, ice cream, candy and fancy deserts. Before we start indulging ourselves with all these goodies it would be wise to check out diabetes and cholesterol levels. These can be checked at the center once a month. Ann will be checking diabetes (sugar level) Thursday and cholesterol on appointment for next Tuesday, May 25 beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Nutrition class

The nutrition classes will be held in the kitchen of the Senior Center Thursday, May 25 starting at 10 a.m. This is a great way to learn how to make foods and goodies which will keep the heart healthy. This is another free class.

Thanks, Kiwanis

Gratitude is extended to the Wilmington Kiwanis Club for the wonderful evening prepared for over 60 of our disabled and advanced aged seniors last Monday. For many it was the first night out they have had in many years. For others it was a chance to renew acquaintances from their attendance last year. It is very difficult for these seniors to attend an evening social, but with the help of the Kiwanis Club members and commissioners Joe Filipowicz, Evelyn Kaminski, Grace Kirkland and Henry Latta and their spouses, along with our respite care services Margaret Keady and former respite care services Mary Hanson these seniors were overjoyed with happiness and gratitude.

Change meeting times?

Chairman Marilyn McCarthy of the Commissioners has been approached by many seniors on the question of changing the day and time of the commissioners meetings. At her request she would like the residents of the town 60 years and over if they would, to call the center or send a note to the center letting her know whether they would attend the meetings if they were held on another day or at another time. From the number of those wanting the same day and time, she can go from there hoping to satisfy the majority of seniors.

It is her hope to get a larger number of seniors to attend the meetings.

Dental program

The week of May 16-22 marks the observance of "National Senior Smile Week." The Mass Dental Society has a special program designed for those seniors who need dental care but feel they can't afford it. The program is called "Dentistry for All." Seniors on limited incomes who are not covered by a prepaid dental insurance or Medicaid can receive reduced fees through this program.

Call the Mass. Dental Society between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. 508-651-7511 or 1-800-342-8747. Services through this program: emergency treatment, x-rays, first and periodic exams, cleanings, fluoride treatments, sealants, extractions, fillings, dentures and partial dentures. All the dentists in the program have agreed to charge a minimized fee to patients approved for the program.

To get approved when you call the Dental Society, ask for an application. It will contain a financial form and a certificate of need that will have to be filled out and returned. If approved you will receive a list of dentists in the program.

Employment assistance program begins May 24

Economic changes have left many Wilmington residents without work. To aid their return to the workforce, the Town of Wilmington's Small Cities Program will begin its employment assistance program in room 9 of the Town Hall on Monday, May 24 at 10 a.m. This first meeting will provide an opportunity to register for the program and learn about available services.

The Small Cities Program's

employment assistance consists of six components: training grants to develop new job skills through classes or on the job training; a job bank listing employment opportunities; career assessment; employment seminars to develop job search skills; group counseling and support; and referrals to DET and other employment programs that can benefit people in their job search. Detailed information about these services will be discussed at the May 24 meeting. For more information contact Cathy Beyer at 658-6333.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending May 18, Wilmington police officers responded to 40 alarms, 15 reports of disorderly conduct, made three arrests and four protective custody detentions, logged one assault complaint and quieted two domestic problems.

Eight larcenies were checked out, two motor vehicles were reported stolen and two were recovered. Two persons were reported missing and medical assistance was rendered four times.

Eleven animal related complaints were logged along with four non-criminal complaints and a threat complaint. Fifteen public services were completed, seven traffic accidents were investigated and six traffic services were performed.

Recreation vehicle complaints were taken, 10 incidents of vandalism were reported and alert neighbors reported 14 incidents of suspicious activity.

Arrests

Early Wednesday, Sgt. Duffy arrested Neal Mainey, 27 of Andover on the basis of a default warrant. Mainey had been stopped by a trooper in Woburn and was held for court.

Friday night Ptlmn Bob Richter arrested a Hyannis man on Route 62 near Route 93. Mark T. Buckley, 32 was charged with operating after his drivers license was suspended, driving an unregistered and uninsured motor vehicle and attaching improper registration plates.

Housebreaks

Housebreaks continue to plague the town, with special emphasis to the Route 93 corridor and adjacent streets. The police request residents be alert to strangers and unknown cars in their neighborhood.

Call the station for any suspicious incident. Officers can not be everywhere, we depend on alert citizens to notify the station of whatever appears out of place.

Home improvement scams
Driveway paving and sealing scams continue to hit Wilmington and all of greater Boston. This information does not apply to the many legitimate businesses located in the area.

Legitimate operators advertise in the telephone directories and local news media. They have phone numbers you can call, and addresses that can be checked out through the post office or local police departments.

The itinerant scam artists usually solicit work, door to door. They might provide a business card, but often, there is no address or phone number. Watch out for the offer to spray seal your driveway, the process does not work, even if it looks good. If you get a really low estimate for paving, compare it with someone else. If it is too low, there is something wrong. If the contractor wants to escort you to the bank for a cash withdrawal for payment, watch out!!

Wilmington Adult Softball

Hatchey slams door on Lions

by James Pote
Charlie's Auto Body, 7
Lions Club 1

Jim Hatchey was the star in this Wilmington Adult Softball League game, as he pitched magnificent softball, holding the Lions Club to one unearned run and eight hits.

He was aided by Ronnie Barber's two hits and two RBI's along with RBI singles from John Ciampa, Kenny Chocola and Frank Botte.

The Lions have to heat up their bats to get out of their losing streak, since Bob Ducey was the only Lion to have two hits.

E.C. Whitney 14
Shea Concrete 9

Colonial Park Liquors is now going to be known as E.C. Whitney, but to them it doesn't matter, because they posted another win, this time against Shea Concrete.

Artie Bibeau contributed a two-run blast along with two hits and he drove in a total of four runs. Barry Hanson also helped with three hits.

Shea's was impressive with their bats, but certainly not their gloves. Committing six errors doesn't help matters, but that didn't matter to Jerry Deranian and Bob Hardiman, as they each had two hits and drove in two teammates.

E.C. Whitney 12
MacTire 0

Whitney Barrel has now put up three straight wins, as they blanked the highly touted Mac attack. Chuck Osgood and Bobby Noel combined on the five hit shutout to help them jump off to another solid start.

Bob Wilcox and Jimmy O'Donnell each had two hits, including a triple to put the game out of reach. Osgood also had two RBI's to help his own cause.

Rocco's 17
Stelio's 15

In this very exciting game, Rocco's bats exploded with 17 runs and 28 hits to win it in extra innings on a blast from Chucky Duggan.

Duggan was a force, as he had three hits and five RBI's, while teammates Jimmy Rappoli was 3-4, including a homerun and four RBI's, Mike Herra was four for four and Rich Rappoli was three for four, including two doubles.

Stelio's bats were hot also, especially Paul Velardo, who smacked a three-run homer along with a two-run single and a two-run double, but unfortunately his strong efforts were not enough. Dan Bamberg also went deep for Stelio's.

WHS girls clinch tourney berth

by James Pote

The Wilmington High School girls' varsity softball team met Tewksbury last week at Aprile Field in Wilmington, where a win for Wilmington would clinch a spot in the Massachusetts State Tournament.

Wilmington quickly jumped out to a 2-0 lead after the first inning on an RBI single by Carrie Tarantino and a sacrifice fly by Adrienne Fay.

Fay, who pitched exceptionally well for the Cats, struckout 10 batters while giving up only four hits, was cruising along blanking the Tewksbury batters.

In the fifth inning, Wilmington struck again with a leadoff single from Leanne Harris who was driven in by Laurie Southmayd's sacrifice fly. Nicole Oullette and Nancy Pote had back to back hits, with Oullette scoring on Pote's double.

Leslie Dobbins stroked a double in the left center gap to drive in the only run for Tewksbury, as Fay closed it out with a 4-1 victory to clinch a spot for Wilmington.

"It was an excellent game, the two pitchers (Fay and Aimee French) pitched exceptionally well, but the mistake hurt and that's why we didn't win," said Leo DiRocco, coach of Tewksbury.

Wilmington won its 11th game against two defeats and has a tough road ahead with Lawrence on Monday.

Wilmington Little League

Giants slam Dodgers, 9 - 4

Minor League Giants vs Dodgers

The Giants got big games from the Collins brothers to defeat the Dodgers, 9-4 Thursday night. Bobby French had three hits for the Dodgers.

Dodgers vs Astros

Big hits by Pat Trassil, Jeff Sousa, Justin Camarrata and Jimmy Fennelly helped the Dodgers beat the Astros, 15-12.

Bobby French pitched two scoreless innings for the winners. The Astros were led by Andrew Campbell, Chris Ramsdell and Dave Johnson who sparked in the field.

Braves vs Cardinals

Great relief pitching by Joe Burns of the Braves and Joe Ranno of the Cards. The Braves would score and the Cards would come back every inning, but not enough in the last inning.

Giants vs Mets

The Giants won their season opener against the Mets, as starter Dan Tello pitched hitless ball and gave up one run in three innings.

EARTHQUAKE INSURANCE

QUESTION: Since earthquakes occur more frequently in the western half of the U.S., is there a difference between earthquake policies in the east and west.

EARTHQUAKE INSURANCE is written differently in eastern and western states.

ANSWER: Yes. In the Pacific states, earthquake coverage is usually an endorsement to the fire insurance policy. A deductible of at least 5% of the value of the property is required.

In other states, the policy is written separately and also covers volcanic eruption damage. There is no mandatory deductible. There is normally a 50% coinsurance clause (insurance covers half the loss). Also, unlike the fire policies, the foundation of the property is covered.

Walsh tracksters better own records

The Walsh family of Wilmington continued its season long assault on the Bentley College track record book Wednesday night when Suzy bettered her own school record in the 800 meters.

A junior who is a provisional qualifier for the NCAA Division II Championships in the 1,500 meters, Suzy ran the 800 in 2:16.6 at the NEAC Open, which was held at Boston College. In addition to earning her a second place finish, it bettered the school record of 2:17.52 she set a year ago.

It was the fifth record set by Mike or Suzy Walsh this spring. Suzy, a Wilmington High School product, previously lowered the school record in the 1,500 by nearly three seconds and ran a leg on the Falcons' 4 x 400 meter relay team which bettered the school record by over seven seconds.

Her older brother Mike has twice broken the school record in the discus, raising it a total of nearly eight feet to 175 feet, 0 inches. That throw, achieved earlier this month at the Brown Invitational, is the fourth best by a Division II athlete this year and made the automatic qualifying standard for the NCAA Division II Championships.

Last Saturday, the Malden Catholic High School product finished first in the discus at the Easterns, with his throw of 168 feet, two inches easily outdistancing the rest of the field.

Earlier this spring, Mike erased a 19-year-record from the books, throwing the shot 45'3 1/2". The old mark of 43'11 1/2" was set by Paul Mayer in 1974.

Mike will be in action this weekend, competing in the discus at the New England, which will be held at Tufts University. The nationals are slated for May 27-29 at Abilene Christian University in Abilene, Texas.

Northeast baseball league tryouts May 23, 30

All interested Wilmington youngsters are invited to attend an open tryout for a Northeast League baseball team from Wilmington. The tryouts will be held on the next two Sundays, May 23 and 30 at the high school from noon to 2 p.m. each day.

The team is open to players ages 16-18 as of July 31, 1993. For more information, call Bob Willcox at 657-3820.

outdoors column

Commentary:

The right to bear arms

by Bill Conlon
A hearty round of applause to Don Feder, for his column in the Boston Herald on Monday, May 17.

The page 27 column, titled "2nd Amendment Under Fire Again" hit a couple of nails on the head.

Mr. Feder attacked the politically unpopular issue of gun control vs. the Second Amendment. Politically unpopular, because you must be a conservative recidivist and a Rush Limbaugh listener if you don't hold to the "politically correct" view that all guns should be banned, instantly.

Those of us who hunt are among the very few who actually use guns for the tools they are. But by being gun owners, we are also involved in the philosophical arguments for and against prohibiting gun ownership.

Feder pointed out a law proposed by Rhode Island U.S. Senator John Chafee, which will seek to eliminate all handguns in America. Not license them, or require a waiting period, but to ban them, totally. Period.

To support that idea, Feder said, Chafee trotted out former Supreme Court Justice Warren Burger, who is hardly a conservative stalwart.

In part of his column, Feder gave a learned overview of the U.S. Constitution, and the differences between "state militias" in Article I, Section 8, and "militia" as per the Second Amendment. There's a difference.

Officially, the Second Amendment reads: "A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the rights of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." Countless legal minds of liberal leaning have spent countless hours trying to argue that the second amendment does not say "the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." But it does.

Feder's treatment observes that a "militia" is all able-body citizens. A militia, therefore, is an armed civil populace. Article 1, Section 8 gives the federal government the power to absorb state militias when necessary, but the right of the people to bear arms is written separately.

So, Washington can't take civilian guns away, and that is the basis for a citizen's army that does not have to bow to Washington! An awesome responsibility, granted, but it's the backbone of our basic liberty.

We are the armed populace, so we are a recognized army, protected by the Second Amendment. That idea gives the Washington political types a case of the willies.

Self-defense was only one of the reasons for allowing Americans to keep and bear arms. A major part, true, but not the whole reason. But a host of laws over the past 50 years, which give more rights to criminals than to victims, makes it hazardous to your personal freedom to defend yourself, but I hold to the belief that if my home is invaded, I would still prefer being judged by 12 than to be carried by six. Sorry. Self-defense is a right that I believe in, strongly.

But there is a far greater danger to American liberty than criminals.

Those who govern argue that our liberty is not in danger. No nation could possibly take the United States by force, they argue, so hand over the hardware. They don't get it. The danger to our liberty is internal.

The Declaration of Independence clearly states that if the government fails to respond to the wishes of the governed, then government should be abolished. (And no government is going to go down without a fight.) That Declaration was written for the government of King George III, but does it apply today? Hmmm.

If the government ordered you to pay enormous portions of whatever you gained from your work, would you stand for it? The British did it and we roared. Washington does it now, and we grump about taxes.

If huge new taxes were levied on the items you used every day, how long would you put up with it? The British saw their tea dumped into the harbor and protests over the Stamp Act, but we haven't said a word yet about an energy tax, alcohol taxes and all the other taxes we bear.

If new laws came from on high but you had no input about it, you might be peeved. Once known as "taxation without representation", it's now a system in which Congress listens to its lobbyists but the folks back home are ignored and dismissed.

Of course, King George gave himself pay raises and perks whenever he wanted, then balked at requests to stop, but our leaders would never do that, would they?

This isn't a call for revolution, not by a long shot. We have a wonderful system of government, which allows for dramatic changes, but the voters aren't seeing what they want. That is dangerous.

Should the Troubles come, and it is possible, that gun in your closet may be your only real "voice" and the only way to defend our freedom. That, folks, is the real bottom line on private gun ownership -- change of government. Civilians who own guns are responsible for keeping our government honest. Oh yes. Don't buy that crime-in-the-street line for giving up your right to bear arms.

George Washington was right. A gun in private, law-abiding hands is "liberty's teeth" today, just as it was 200 years ago. Hold onto yours.

TOWN OF WILMINGTON

SMALL CITIES PROGRAM

FY '92

NOTICE OF EXPLANATION

FLOOD PLAIN & WETLANDS

The Town of Wilmington, as part of its Small Cities grant, intends to conduct a program of Housing Rehabilitation, largely within the target Silver Lake neighborhood, as bounded by the R-10 zoning district in that area. Approximately twenty-five (25) dwelling units will receive moderate rehabilitation, in the form of correction of violations of the Massachusetts Sanitation, Electric, Building and Plumbing Codes, as well as major deficiencies in terms of structure, roofs, energy efficiency and building systems. An additional three (3) units will receive substantial rehabilitation treatment, creating three (3) accessory units. Direct assistance in grants and loans will total $326,750.

The target area has the highest percentage of low and moderate households and substandard housing of any neighborhood in Wilmington. In order, therefore, to meet the National Objective to "...give maximum feasible priority to activities which will benefit low and moderate income persons and families," the Silver Lake neighborhood (wherein the housing rehabilitation beneficiaries will be 100 percent low and moderate income) is the only feasible designation in Wilmington. Alternatives do not exist elsewhere in the community, in which the National Objective could be met.

An estimated six (6) to eight (8) structures appear to be situated in or abutting the 100 year flood zone A along the Silver Lake flood plain. An estimated six (6) to eight (8) structures (some of which are the same as ones that are potentially within the flood plain around Silver Lake) appear to be located within the 100' of wetlands under MGL Chapter 131. Within this overlap, approximately ten (10) structures, or 1.3 percent of all those in the target neighborhood, might be involved. All are subject to more precise engineering determinations of their exact flood plain or wetlands status.

It will not be known until the housing rehabilitation program is fully commenced if any of the preceding structures that might lie either in flood plain, wetlands transitional buffers or both, will be receiving housing rehabilitation assistance. It is only the actual receipt of this aid that could potentially institute further environmental concerns. In any such instances, the following policies would be followed:

FLOOD INSURANCE, if it is determined that the structures to receive assistance are in Zone A, will be required; this is an eligible program expense.

A REQUEST FOR DETERMINATION OF APPLICABILITY will be filed with the local Conservation Commission, if a structure receiving assistance is determined to lie within the 100' wetlands buffer, and only if certain activities of potential impact are involved; these include: a) replacement or upgrading of deficient septic systems; and b) any additions to the gross living area of the structure.

Comments will be accepted until June 4, 1993; send any response in regard to relevant flood plain or wetlands issues to:

Bob's a butterfly farmer

By JIM McAULEY

On an overcast, drizzly Sunday in early April, Bob Wilson, Wakefield resident, photographer and butterfly farmer (that's right, butterfly farmer), was describing the landscaping projects developing along the perimeter of Papillon Park, "The Butterfly Place" in Westford.

How did you know to look in there? he was asked.

"I don't know," he said. "I was curious. It looked like a place where they would be." He held the one and a half inch long pea-green pupa between thumb and forefinger close to his face. He admired it briefly, rubbed some debris from it and carried it indoors where he could keep watch over it.

As Technical Director of Papillon Park, Bob Wilson was working on some finishing touches inside the Atrium at the Park on that dismal Sunday afternoon. Only a few of the winged exhibits accompanied Wilson and George Leslie, the chief financier of the park who put most of his life's savings into creating this shrine to the lovely and admired winged creatures known collectively as lepidoptera. Leslie, resident of Westford, was tidying up the miniature waterfall/pond layout while a sizeable butterfly, a Tiger Swallowtail, flitted daintily overhead.

Of the few varieties of butterflies that had hatched, only one or two of them were observed flying about. "It's cold," Wilson explained, indicating why the majority of the visible butterflies remained dormant, seemingly comfortable to rest on the heavy wooden rafters that hold the giant glass panels of the Atrium on high.

Butterflies like the "heat and light" Wilson finished. That's when they're active.

Papillon Park is described in park literature as the, "...first living butterfly complex to be established in the Northeastern part of the United States... (primarily) composed of a 3100 square foot glass atrium building with 12 foot side windows tapering over laminated beams to a height of over 24 feet at the peak." It is within this enclosure that Wilson and butterflies thrive.

It's an ambitious project, Wilson is told, regarding the ongoing maintenance, not to mention keeping butterflies alive in the cold (the propane gas heater not yet installed). "Oh, there's always something going on," Wilson admitted while Papillon Park heads into its third full season. "That's why I'm here and not sitting at home," he said. "The railing needs bracing and before I can paint it, I have to brace it." The brace since attached, Wilson turned back to the can of green paint, dipped a brush into it and wiped away last year's scratches and scrapes, changing the old to new.

While at Papillon Park, as Technical Director, Wilson enjoys the hub-bub of a busy season. "We spend a lot of time telling people where to find caterpillars in their neighborhood. That's what we do here." Serious photographer and knowledgeable butterfly farmer aside, Wilson, quick witted, also admitted, "I prefer to mill around with the kids and fool around with them," answering their questions and making a trip to "The Butterfly Place" a fun learning experience.

Actually viewing live caterpillars, butterflies and a few moths, Papillon Park offers visual aides of a more widely understood way of viewing the world. While a video production

Winchester Imaging Center Mammography accredited

The mammography suite at the Winchester Imaging Center, affiliated with Winchester Hospital, has been awarded a three-year accreditation by the American College of Radiology (ACR).

The facility has met the necessary requirements, which include a peer review evaluation of the facility's staff qualifications, equipment, quality control and quality assurance programs, image quality and breast dose.

Winchester Imaging Center's mammography suite is one of 2,100 ACR accredited facilities nationwide. This program was started in response to two major concerns expressed by radiologists, national medical organizations and the public. They were that qualified personnel perform and interpret mammograms and that dedicated mammographic equipment be used to ensure that women receive the optimum mammographic examination with the lowest possible risk.

In addition to receiving ACR accreditation, three registered technologists at the Winchester Imaging Center recently received advanced certification in mammography by the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists (ARRT).

Pat Fassio, R.T. (R.) (M.); Renee LaPlante, R.T. (R.) (M.) and Jeanine Rousseau, R.T.R.M., completed and passed an extensive examination given by ARRT. This test verifies their skills in using state-of-the-art mammography equipment. The comprehensive examination included mastery of patient education skills, clinical breast examination, mammographic techniques, instrumentation, positioning and anatomy and physiology.

The AART exam is given four times a year. Certification signifies that fully licensed and registered technologists have demonstrated advanced skill in performing mammograms. They are now authorized to use the additional title Registered Mammographer (R.) (M.). Having mammography performed by a Registered Mammographer allows the patient to receive state-of-the-art examination and education.

With ACR accreditation and ARRT advanced certification in mammography, the Winchester Imaging Center, located at Baldwin Park II in Woburn, offers the local community access to the highest level of Mammography examination available.

The passage of the bills would reduce the number of necessary trips.

necessary to implement the $60,000 Small Cities Grant awarded the town last August. The Town Hall will be the site of their office. And Glenn Garber, former Community Development Director from Peabody and Portsmouth, NH, will direct.

The new team also includes Burlington resident Cathy Beyer who will act as part-time job counselor and Wilmington resident Joanna Clayton, the program secretary. Salaries and office space are funded via the grant through the office of Housing and Urban Development.

The grant is intended to help residents with low to moderate incomes to rehabilitate their homes; allow first-time homebuyers to purchase a home; and give assistance to the unemployed.

According to Town Manager Michael Cairra, employment assistance could be provided through such measures as job counseling and training, creating a local job bank, and forming a partnership with local companies to share funds and offer jobs to the unemployed.

Pappas also assists elders who choose to remain in their homes by: helping them identify safety risks in the home, providing assistance with minor repairs or adaptations through the COA Handyman Program; locating reputable contractors for more extensive repairs or renovations; helping them consider home sharing and other shared living options; and informing them of all community resources available to help them maintain dignity and independence in familiar surroundings.

The counseling service is free.

Butterflies

about the fascinating world of lepidoptera appears on screen at one end of an exhibits area, Wilson conducts a slide show at the other end. "My slide show tells people things they don't know," informing them that flies, beetles and wasps, among a few species of the insect world, metamorphose as butterflies do. "You know it, but you just don't see it," Wilson acknowledges about our vision of the insect world surrounding us. "What's a maggot?" he asks. A baby fly, he is answered.

"What's a beetle?" he asks. "It's the adult of the larvae we dig up in the garden." Right again, Wilson's eyes say.

Where to find butterfly growth in your own backyard? Well, we all know what caterpillars look like. And chances are, if you have them prowling around your garden, that's where their parents, butterflies, have laid the eggs that hatched them. Growing parsley and carrots will attract Black Swallowtails, Wilson says. So look for their eggs. You won't trip over them, that's for sure. Look for tiny clusters of minute bumps on leaves. If they're near caterpillars, there's a good chance you have a butterfly roost right in your very own backyard.

Asked if Floral Way (along the Old Burial Ground and behind The Hartshorne House on Church Street in Wakefield) is a haven for butterfly growth, Wilson, surprisingly, said no. "I think they spray there or something," Wilson said, noting the area was not active with caterpillars. "I've found a lot of pupa of Tiger Swallowtails on Main Street near the lake (Quannapowitt)" just before Beebe's Cove suggesting they breed there and go through all four stages of a butterfly's growth.

To generalize about butterfly growth (such as the life of a butterfly as opposed to that of a caterpillar's life) would be arbitrary, says Wilson. "There are so many exceptions," he says, referring to the varied growth cycle butterflies experience.

"A butterfly typically would be in the pupa eight to ten days, sometimes two to three weeks, and then of course the kicker, some of them are in there the whole winter," Wilson continues. "Most of them hatch out in two to three weeks during the summer months." For some caterpillars, Wilson says, their growth is so slow due to their feeding patterns, that only one generation may exist in one season. Local resident, The Tiger Swallowtail, is an example.

THE GLASS ATRIUM OF PAPILLON PARK, "The Butterfly Place" in Westford dominates not only from the exterior but from within also. It is home of up to 300 butterflies representing 20 different species.

The large yellow butterfly with vertical black stripes, that includes as host plants for its caterpillars, willow, poplar and cherry, and as a butterfly derives its nectar from such plants as milkweed, lilac and phlox, lives a short life as Wilson explains, "The chrysalis spends all winter, and then the butterfly comes out in early summer. (It) flies around for a couple of weeks; during that time they're mating and laying eggs. Their caterpillars grow up, make a chrysalis and stay until next spring. So there's one generation.

"We have quite a few butterflies that will have two, or three or four generations during the summer months, but then, ultimately have to shut down for the winter," Wilson explains.

As beauty is in the eye of the beholder, so too is the relative life expectancy of the average butterfly in the eyes of today's not so acquainted gardener.

"Everybody has Black Swallowtails," Wilson assures. They feed on the carrots and parsley in your yard. The Black Swallowtail is a really typical example (of your basic, average, backyard butterfly).

"The caterpillar lives for four to five weeks, pupates for couple of weeks during the summer - then you get a butterfly. It might do that a couple of times during the summer. Then the final generation; the pupa stays all winter. A lot of people who come to our place (Papillon Park) discover what a Black Swallowtail caterpillar looks like and say, 'Oh No! I've been killing those for years!'"

Bicycle tours weeklong family fun

Families and individuals looking for a bicycle vacation that is leisurely and low-cost, should look into those offered by The Wayfarers. The brochure listing 1993 tours has been released.

The Wayfarers, a non-profit bicycle touring service, has been offering low-cost, leisurely family tours annually since 1986, bringing over 400 people on tours ranging from weekend to two weeks in length. The major tours, however, are week-long, cross-state events, such as Penn Central (New York to Maryland, June 19-26) and Cycling Jersey (the length of the Garden State, August 7-14). Six days of bicycling covers 200-300 miles of fun and friendship in a family atmosphere.

New for 1993 are three European tours: The Lowlands (Belgium and the Netherlands, July 17-31), St. George's Cross (crossing England from August 28 to September 5), and Cykelturen Af Danmark (across Denmark, September 10-18). All of these follow the same format as domestic tours, plus they have been planned in cooperation with experienced bicyclists in those countries. Local residents are expected to join the tour, as well as Americans.

The tours generally start out slowly, with a first day around 35 miles. Each day gets longer as participants get stronger. The maximum day might be as much as 55 miles. A day's pedaling is planned to take less than five hours, including frequent stops, but each person goes at his or her own pace. Thus this tour is perfect for families with different abilities.

These are casual tours of planned insouciance. Participants are encouraged to stop at any places of interest, to sample the ice cream at each store, to absorb the ambiance in each town. At the same time, there is the day's distance to accomplish, another town to discover, another flavor to taste. These are tours for leisurely bicycling, while still accomplishing the goal of pedaling from one end of the state (or country) to the other.

By using hostels or camping out each night and by everyone volunteering to help with what needs to be done, the costs are kept quite low. For example, Penn Central in June cost $130 for the week (plus meals, of course), while two weeks in The Lowlands in July cost $600 (plus airfare, but most meals are included)! There are usually discounts for family members, down to $50 for kids under the age of 10 on Cycling Jersey in August.

Several of these tours are planned by committees of people who have participated on the tour previously.

For the 1993 brochure describing the tours, send your name and address plus a 29¢ stamp to The Wayfarers, PO Box 73408, Washington, DC, 20056.

MOVIES

by Rochelle Flynn — "Lost in Yonkers"

"Lost in Yonkers" Starring Mercedes Ruehl, Richard Dreyfuss, Irene Worth, Brad Stoll, Mike Damus. Directed by Martha Coolidge. Produced by Ray Stark. Screenplay by Neil Simon, based on his play. Rated PG.

Like flies to honey, the candy store setting of "Lost in Yonkers" is meant as an attractive trap. Granny with her rosy round cheeks and wire rimmed glasses looks like a sweetie. She runs a store overflowing with sweets and ice cream. What more could a grandchild wish?

From the onset, Neil Simon's play-turned-movie proves that almost nothing is the way it should be, or even seems to be. When Eddie (Jack Laufer) drops his two motherless sons off with his mother, so he can take a much-needed job as a travelling salesman, he's leaving his kids in a candy-coated prison, with grandma as the steely warden.

Grandma, played by Irene Worth, instills amazing depth into this contrary and reticent woman. Her eyes bespeak an emotional pain she keeps bottled inside an aching body. Grandma is a survivor. She was crushed by a horse at 12, her body left twisted and in pain. As a young emigre from Germany, she lost her first two children and then her young husband. So she decided to teach her children to be survivors - at any cost.

Needless to say, young Jay (Brad Stoll) and even younger Arty (Mike Damus) don't want to be left with this bitter, nasty, cantankerous woman. Grandma has so terrorized one of her daughters that the woman can barely breathe in her presence, and the boys' father stammers and clams up when around her. But Aunt Bella, she's a different story.

Mercedes Ruehl, who won a Tony for this part on Broadway, is all soft and warm and sweet on the outside. At first she seems confused, even slow. Bella has a learning disability and was always treated as a child, so she never grew emotionally. Or so everyone thinks. But Bella is really the only one of Grandma's four grown children who isn't squashed by the old lady. After all, she lives with her.

Richard Dreyfuss, the boys' uncle, is a petty gangster who comes home to hide out for a few days. He relishes being a bad influence on his nephews, teaching them to smoke and gamble, giving them a good dose of "moxie." But, like his sister Bella, this character has a lot of depth. He can stand up to his mother, almost. And he really has a kinder heart than he'd want anyone to believe.

Like many plays adapted to the screen, this film suffers from a boxed in, claustrophobic feeling. But it's an easily overlooked problem, as there is enough bittersweet, emotional resonance to make the characters seem very real. Director Martha Coolidge let each of these actors, the youngsters included, develop strong personalities. And while there is plenty of humor, Coolidge never lost the twisted dysfunctionality simmering beneath every joke, ever conversation. Simon constructed a brilliant and often funny character piece that is ultimately a sad commentary on family life.

Short Takes

Dave is the story of a presidential lookalike who's asked to remain in his role as First Imposter after the real thing has a stroke. Kevin Kline brings verve and a common sense goodness to a tale that glides over the predictable, comedic pitfalls. Rated PG-13. ***

Dragon is a slick Hollywood biopic about Bruce Lee, the famous martial arts instructor turned movie star. Jason Scott Lee gives an enthusiastic, agile performance as the defiant Lee, a man who refused to be reined in by conventional action flicks or Asian stereotyping. Extremely entertaining and more than a little rousing. Rated PG-13. ***

Map of the Human Heart is a sprawling, engrossing love story that pushed the limits of the genre. Jason Scott Lee stars as an Inuit who falls for a young Canadian half-breed, Anne Parillaud, in the early 1930s. Their connection spans three decades and two continents. A beautifully made, passionate film that is probably the most original romance you'll ever watch. Rated R. ****

Posse stars director Mario Van Peebles as the leader of a colorful band of African-American cowboys. Revisionist and intelligent, it is enhanced, and suffers from, artistic direction that sometimes goes overboard. Carrying a strong message, this is an intriguing mix of righteous violence and unusual characters. Rated R. ***

Indian Summer features seven former campers who reunite for a weekend of Yuppie angst. All light and fluffy, this flick desperately wants to be taken seriously. Too manipulative to have much emotional impact, it does have pretty settings and a decent cast, especially Diane Lane as a woman unable to bury her husband's memory and get on with life. Rated PG-13. **

Splitting Heirs stars Eric Idle as a British stockbroker who discovers he is actually the son of a Duke. The plot is all over the place, but much of the humor is acerbic and terrible clever. Don't think too hard and you'll find this flick quite funny. Rated PG-13. ***

Benny and Joon has several sugar-coated problems, but fabulous performances by a cast helps it soar above a script too precious to be taken seriously. Aidan Quinn and his mentally ill sister, Mary Stuart Masterson, find their lives disrupted, and enriched, when eccentric Johnny Depp comes on the scene. Consider this a guilty pleasure - it's funny and enjoyable, but too cute for its own good. Rated PG.  1/2

Indecent Proposal stars Demi Moore and Woody Harrelson as a shallow Yuppie couple who allow Robert Redford to buy a night with Moore for $1 million. Manipulative and lacking both sparkle and imagination, the plot unfolds much as you'd expect. Though about as predictable as a commercial, the movie is actually more leaden than you might have anticipated. Rated R. **

Strictly Ballroom is a quirky Aussie import that is funny and sassy and just a little strange. All hell breaks loose when a talented and spirited young couple decide to introduce new steps in ballroom competition. As stylish as it is intelligent, this low-budget flick is laden with sentiment and originality. Rated PG.  1/2

Point of No Return stars Bridget Fonda as a convicted murderer transformed into a sleek assassin by a covert government agency in this remake of the French art house flick, "Nikita." A comic book thriller with lots of action, this movie is fun, but far too blatant to be taken seriously. Rated R. ***

Aladdin may not be a Disney classic, but it is a lot of fun, Robin Williams' witty performance as a big blue genie is a non-stop vaudevilian act, as he

Like Water for Chocolate is a magical, Mexican film about a kind-hearted woman whose cooking reflects the passions she bottles up inside for a man she cannot marry. The story juggles wisdom and humor while rejoicing in the recuperative powers of women. Rarely is passion so artfully translated onto the screen. Rated R. ***

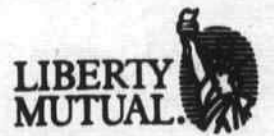

The Crying Game is a twisting, turning action romance that defies conventional movie mores. What begins as a movie about IRA terrorists takes you on a journey that flows seamlessly from one genre into another, surprising and delighting along the way. There's good reason people are chattering about this film, as audiences are seldom treated to such originality. Rated R. ****

ANTHONY MANCONI

Almost every restaurant and dining establishment employs the services of a chef, many times one who is world renown. His duties are similar or at least comparable to that of a composer of music, who carefully selects notes of the musical scale so that a harmonious masterpiece is created. A master chef selects from various meats and vegetables and with relishes, spices and herbs added creates a delicious dinner fit for a king. America is the singular finished product of a master chef, our Creator, who has blended together people of many countries, races and creeds into "one" homogeneous people, "Americans."

My Uncle John Shea never believed in that theory because, as a longshoreman hiring foreman many years ago on Charlestown docks and piers, he would hire only Irishmen. One day a young man asked for a job. "Are you Irish?" Uncle John asked in a bellowing voice. "No," meekly responded the young man, "but my grandmother is."

"Good," shouted Uncle John, "tell your grandmother to report to work on Pier 4 at five in the morning."

Mario DiMino of Stoneham asked his wife, Maria, if she would mind walking two paces behind him when they take their Sunday afternoon stroll near the Stone Zoo. He explained to Maria that his father told him that was the custom in Italy.

"Look here, you idiot," Maria shouted, "those days are gone forever. Today, a wife asks her husband if he knows how to 'stuff peppers'....A lawyer called his office and told his secretary that he wouldn't be available because he was sick. He had a "brief" "case" of the "grip."

Bob Bergeron of Woburn worked for the Boston and Maine Railroad. It took a lot of "training" before he got the job. One day a man said to Bob, "My face is my ticket." "Good," Bob replied, "I have orders to punch all tickets." He asked a little girl, "How old are you?" "I'm five years old." "When will you be six?" Bob asked. "When I get off the train," she answered.

A woman who hated Sir Winston Churchill said to him, "Sir Winston, were you my husband, I'd poison your tea." Churchill smiled and replied, "Madam, were you my wife I'd drink the tea."...Beyond the Alps lies Italy, beyond the Billboards lies America.

President Ruth O'Leary and several members of the garden club visited Aunt Nora who was sick in bed with the flu. After a half hour talking about almost everyone in the neighborhood that would make "Jack the Ripper" blush, they got up to leave. Ruth O'Leary said, "We hope you feel better Nora, we'll pray for you." Aunt Nora wasn't too weak to shout, "Just wash those dirty cups and saucers in the sink. I can do my own praying, thank you."

The boss told Joe Ravid, "I know you can't get married on the salary I'm paying you and someday you'll thank me."...With the tax increase on liquor, Dean Martin sadly said, "My cost of living just went up a dollar a quart."...The auto school driving instructor told Kathy, "Stop on red, Go on green and 'please' slow down when I turn white."

Are you superstitious? Knock on wood, I'm glad I'm not. But there was a time when, breaking a mirror, spilling salt, walking under a ladder or a black cat crossing my path would scare the daylight out of me. Jon Norton, a Melrose school teacher, cured me of that fear. He works weekends at Bob's Discount as a clerk. I bought several items and tax included the bill came to exactly 13 dollars. "Oh!" I exclaimed, "I have to buy something else - anything." Jon smiled and said, "Chipper, the number 13 bothered me too, until a friend of mine told me this 'There is no power apart from God. Omnipotence has all power, to acknowledge any other power is to dishonor God,' Mary Baker Eddy."

Steve Reardon wasn't having any success trying to raise eggplants in his garden. I advised him to write to the Department of Agriculture. I was sure they would solve the problem. Steve sent a letter explaining how he planted white eggs, then later brown eggs, both proving to be useless. Ten days later Steve received this reply, "Thank you for your inquiry regarding failure to grow eggplants. We are sorry, but we can't render a solution for your problem unless you send us a soil sample." Steve showed me the letter and I said to him, "I guess the 'yolk' is on you, Steve."

"Why do you look so sad?" I asked Paul Simon from Stoneham. "My wife ran off with my best friend and I miss him," he replied... My Aunt Nora said to Fr. John Crispo, "Look at that old bloke, down on his knees praying like there is no tomorrow. I remember when all he cared about was wine, women and song. Now he's in church every morning." "Now, now, Nora," Fr. Crispo replied, "don't you know that the bigger the sinner, the 'greater' the Saint?" With a look of resignation Aunt Nora exclaimed, "Father, I wish someone would have told me that 50 years ago!"

Sean Hurley told his mother, Sharon, that he wanted to be a priest. (Truthfully, Sean wasn't very energetic in doing chores in the house). One day Sharon asked him to carry out the rubbish. Sean protested saying, "Mom, I'm tired." Mom gave him a lecture, "Sean you can't be a priest if you're lazy. Look how hard Father Nason has to work." "I know, I know," Sean replied, "that's why I'm resting now."

Lawrence Memorial offers activity and health session

Most people know that physical activity is a major factor in maintaining desirable weight and health. After the long, cold winter, many people are carrying around unwanted pounds and trying to get back into a routine of regular exercise.

Many people think they have to join a health club or "sweat and burn" to become fit. "This is not true," says Eric Schreiber, M.D., medical director of Lawrence Memorial Hospital's Health Management Program. "Going from 'couch potato' to consistent, small levels of activity, such as walking, may add years to your current life expectancy. Physical activity may also reduce your risk of heart disease, hypertension and osteoporosis."

Research shows that increasing lower-intensity exercise, such as walking and gardening, by 50% may produce the same long-term effects as aerobic activity. Three miles of walking may be as good for your health as one mile of running. Walking may be even better for you because there is less threat of injury.

The easiest way to increase your physical activity is to make it a part of a daily routine, suggested Dr. Schreiber. He recommends taking the stairs instead of the elevator, parking at the far end of a parking lot, walking to where you would usually drive or playing golf without a cart.

It is best to start with some easy changes, Dr. Schreiber suggests. "There is no single health change you can make that will have as dramatic an impact on your total health and well-being as developing a more physically-active lifestyle. And, it can be a lot easier than you think."

The Lawrence's Health Management Program emphasizes physical activity in combination with dietary changes to reduce weight. The program consists of a medically-supervised liquid supplement diet, behavioral education classes and a maintenance program. To learn more about the program, the Lawrence is holding a free information session on Thursday, May 20 at 6 p.m. in the LMH School of Nursing. For more information or to register, please call (617) 395-2260.

Winchester Hospital

Free "Lifeline" installation offered

For the elderly or disabled, it can be a very frightening or even life threatening experience, to be alone when in need of medical assistance. Winchester Hospital offers Lifeline Personal Response System which links people who are alone to a 24-hour emergency assistance. Winchester Hospital is offering free Lifeline installation for the months of May and June.

Lifeline is a small paging device which patients can wear around their waist or neck. With just the press of a button, a signal is sent to Lifeline Central, a terminal in Watertown, where certified personnel are trained to receive emergency calls 24 hours a day. Once Lifeline Central receives the emergency signal, a trained professional contacts the patient at home through a voice box.

"Lifeline allows the patient to feel more secure about living at home," said Joanne Artiano, Lifeline Coordinator at Winchester Hospital. "Knowing they have access to a 24 hour medical response service, can make a significant difference to patients and their families."

To find out more about Lifeline, contact Joanne Artiano at Winchester Hospital at (617) 756-2637.

Pitches for White Sox

Bere makes major league debut tonight

A former Wilmington High School athlete will be living every local little leaguer's dream tonight when he takes the mound in Chicago's Comiskey Park to face future Hall of Famer George Brett and the Kansas City Royals.

Wilmington's Jason Bere, a 1989 standout with coach Dick Scanlon's WHS varsity baseball team, will make his major league pitching debut tonight against the Kansas City Royals.

The journey to the majors has been rapid for Bere after being scouted and signed while pitching at Middlesex Community College by Chicago White Sox Scout Guy Mader, a Tewksbury resident who also has a talented son Chris playing in the Chicago minor league system.

Bere almost made the big club after an impressive spring training, but the call came later when the White Sox waived veteran pitcher Dave Steib Monday morning.

Jason developed rapidly after a 9-3 senior season at WHS, gaining 25 pounds and growing three inches while developing a changeup to go along with a slider and a major league fastball.

He even improved in the face of an 0-11 start in his first combined minor league season with Sarasota and South Bend. From there it was on to Birmingham (AA), Vancouver (AAA) and Nashville (AAA), where he was pitching when the call from the majors came earlier this week.

So far this spring in Nashville Bere was 5-1 with a 2.37 ERA, 52 strikeouts, 25 walks and 36 hits allowed in 49 and one-third innings of work. He'd allowed just 13 earned runs in the minor leagues this season.

Eye on the future

Wilmington High School pitcher Mike Alanardo cranks and fires a pitch in Monday's 7-3 over Dracut.

Selectmen vote to help fight taxes

Wilmington selectmen on a notion by Mike McCoy voted unanimously Monday night to send a telegram to state legislators opposing two new tax proposals currently pending on the floor of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

The first battle that the town aces is the fight against a plan to raise the rate of excise tax on cars by as much as 133 percent. The second vote will come on the bill to reverse the Prop 2 and one-half ap that is in place and allow towns to set tax increases equal to the rate of inflation on any given year.

According to McCoy, an increase to five percent would place an unfair burden on Wilmington, where many people are unemployed and facing the loss of their homes.

"It is important to communicate with the legislators on these issues of taxation," noted McCoy. The motion passed on a 5-0 vote, and Town Manager Mike Cairra prepared the telegram Tuesday morning.

Wilmington softball girls complete surge to tourney

Wilmington High School's varsity girls softball team stormed through the second half of its Merrimack Valley schedule to take the small school title besting both Lawrence (5-2), Dracut (3-1) and finally Chelmsford (2-0) to finish with a superb 16-2 slate and first place in the Small School Division of the MVC as the team awaits the announcement of the tournament pairings Thursday morning. Wilmington's April Field will be the host field for most of the tourney.

Monday night ace pitcher Adrienne Fay fired a one-hitter for her 14th win of the season as Wilmington blanked Chelmsford, 2-0. Fay fanned five and walked only one Lion.

Carrie Tarantino (double), Stacey Gillis (RBI single), Laurie Southmayd (double) and Nicole Ouellette (RBI double) had the key Wilmington hits Monday night.

This year's team is getting some tremendous leadership from its seniors, led by captains Nicole Ouellette and Kerry Bowlby and fine support from seniors Carrie Tarantino, Leanne Tarantino and Lynette Berger.

A bevy of underclassmen have chipped in all year, as freshmen Nicole Dussault, Renee Vachon and Leanne Harris have all made outstanding contributions to the success of the team, while a strong contingent of sophomores head up the infield, including starters Laurie Southmayd, Nancy Pote and Jacqueline Holloway along with backups Erin Falzone, Jacqui Hayden and Lindsay Currier. The junior class is well represented by starters Adrienne Fay and Stacey Gillis, with Jen Murray handling the backup duties at pitcher and third base.

Despite some outstanding individual seasons that players have had, teamwork and unselfishness are the trade mark that carried the Lady Wildcats to their title this year.

Board of appeals appointments

Wilmington selectmen Monday night reappointed Phil Fenton and Charles Boyle as fulltime members of the board of appeals. Anita Backman was reappointed as an associate member to a one year term.

The board had been operating with two permanent members and one associate member after much discussion by selectmen over the past two months regarding whether members already on the board of appeals had to seek nomination in writing.
